Electronic Payment Exchange Corporate Headquarters Moves to a New Location to Support Record Growth

Wilmington, DE January 11, 2010 – Electronic Payment Exchange (EPX), a leading merchant acquirer and payment processor, announced today that they have moved their corporate headquarters to a state-of-the art facility located at 1201 North Market Street in Wilmington, Delaware.

“After a record-setting year, EPX is poised for even more dynamic growth in 2010,” said EPX Chief Financial Officer Nancy Reilly. “To accommodate this growth of our client base, we foresee sustained growth to our customer service, implementation, and sales staffs, and our new office facility provides us with the space needed to grow.”

Citing EPX’s focus on PCI compliance, competitive pricing, and customer service, Reilly believes that EPX’s sales success is attributed to merchants’ desires to find better, more secure payment processing solutions. “Our 2009 sales growth underscores the importance and pressing need for payment processing solutions that help merchants achieve compliance with the Payment Card Industry Data Security Standards,” states Reilly. “EPX has revolutionized the payments industry by offering front- and back-end, straight-through processing along with our EPX BuyerWall-based solutions, and last year’s record sales continue to prove our value to merchants.”

Reilly believes the move benefits EPX clients, prospects, partners, and employees. “Our new facility provides phenomenal work and meeting space, and the office’s close proximity to major transportation centers and Wilmington’s financial district make us readily accessible to visiting clients, prospects, and partners,” Reilly said.
